

Western Center for Agricultural Health and Safety
University of California, Davis

Invites you to a
Free Training (in Spanish)

For people in charge of training farmworkers on
How to prevent heat illness

Why this information is important:

- Cal/OSHA requires employers in agriculture to have an effective program to protect farmworkers from heat.
- It is important to review the heat law §3595 and discuss practical solutions to offer water, shade, and rest.
- It is important to know how heat affects the way our body works, and to understand the short and long term health risk of dehydration; as well as how to reduce our risk.
- We will provide educational materials that will help you train your workers.

When

Thursday, May 17, 2018
9:00 am -12:00 pm

Where:

395 W. Spruce Ave., Suite 103
Clovis, CA

Space is limited

Please fill out the registration form, included below, no later than
May 11, 2018.

UCDAVIS

Western Center for Agricultural Health and Safety
University of California, Davis

Registration Form Free Training (in Spanish)

For people in charge of training farmworkers on

How to prevent heat illness

Thursday May 17, 2018

395 W Spruce Ave. Suite 103, Clovis CA

To register, fill out this form and send it to Teresa Andrews, no later than May 11, 2018

Email: terandrews@ucdavis.edu

Fax: (530) 752-5047

Name _____

Phone _____

Email _____

Company _____

Address: _____

How many workers will you train? _____

Where did you hear about this training? _____

One form per person

UCDAVIS